THE SABBATH LAW.

The bluest blue law of the present legislative session was passed yesterday by the senate. The bill was the one providing for the closing of all places of amusement on Sunday. It was killed in the house on Tuesday, but was resurrected yesterday and passed after it had been so amended that its death by the house seems certain.

Under the provisions of the bill as it now stands it is unlawful to bathe on Sunday unless you do it in the privacy of your own bath, and then, perhaps, only when your wife stands watch and warns the state of the state.

> Senator Rudolph Kuchler yesterday alnost succeeded in bringing the present lession of the state legislature to an abrupt close. At noon yesterday he moved to adjourn, instead of "to saunter" and sought to have the question put to a vote of the senators. Though clearly in violation of all the rules of procedure. Senator Williams, who was in the chair, declined to entertain the motion, ruling the mover out of order. By a rule of the senate, as well as every other parliamentary body, a motion to adjourn is always in order. with this amendment will be passed and that the governor will sign it. If he feels like vetoing it, he would not dare to do so for fear of the wrath that would come upon him."
Fuller made the closing argument. He said that "Ogden is the home of the great whisky king, who wields a powerful influence to dethrone the manhood of the boys." The amendment was lost.

As to Mining Camps.

"If there is a reason why Salt Lake should be exempted," said Mr. Holman, "there is double reason why mining camps should be. By reason of the character of their population these are the very places which should be eliminated from the county local option feature."

Mr. Holman said that there was no reason apparent to him except that the governor was a party map. ernor was a party man.

A Miserable Subterfuge.

Mr. Thompson said, in announcing his 'I deem this measure a miserable subterfuge. It is nothing more than a ratifi-cation of the deal that has been made between the Republican 'leaders' and the liquor interests. It is the worst piece of infamy that I have ever seen, and the stigma that attaches to a man who casts his vote for this measure will stay with him as long as his life lasts. He is nothing more than an accessory after the fact of the deal."

Mr. White refused so to stultify his manhood as to permit any man to tell him what to do when he represented a constituency. He knew that his constituents are not satisfied with this bill, especially with the manner in which it has been crammed down the throats of the mem-

These signed the committee report:
Senators W. N. Williams, S. J. Stookey, Charles E. Marks, Herschel Bullen, jr., E. C. Horsley and Representatives John N. Davis, R. M. Pope, W. S. Hansen and J. H. Wootton. While three of the members of the joint committee did not sign the report, there was no minority report.

FEDERAL BUNCH FOR DEAL WITH BREWERS

The views of the opposition are pretty thoroughly set forth in the speech of Representative Cannon of Salt Lake county. The address covers in concise form the history of the notorious transactions that have been incidental to the liquor legis-lation. Mr. Cannon said: lation. Mr. Cannon said:

"Mr. Speaker—In considering the subject of the liquor evil. it behooves men to guard the expression of their thoughts. Each one of us can turn to the darkened room of his own sad memories and mingle with the blighted life, the lost soul. of some one dear to him, whose downfall was drink. Each of us has seen hope and happiness die in the heart of a good woman through sickening and constant fear. happiness die in the heart of a good wo-man through sickening and constant fear, poverty and disgrace caused by a drunk-en husband. Each of us has pitied the drunkard's child burdened in the unequal battle of life by a father's shame.

"Besides the emotions that naturally arise with the consideration of the subislation for the liquor question was sold. I charge no member of the legislative body with being a party at that time to the bargain. I believe that few even knew of its existence. Moreover, it is my solemn conviction that the hopelessness of

The agitation ended after a time completely. But whatever other purposes it may have accomplished, it crystallized in the hearts of the readers of the paper a hope in some, and expectation in all that prohibition would come.

Turned Down in Convention.

"Delegates came to the Republican state convention thinking that the party would declare itself for prohibition in its platform. One of my colleagues from Salt Lake was a member of the resolutions committee and asked that this plank be inserted. He was overruled. I understand, on the ground that it would not be political wisdom. Another delegate stated to three members of this house on Washington's birthday that the senior senator As to Mining Camps.

The convention was silent on the subject and adjourned, but as a delegate, who incidentally does not believe usually in conventally tion legislation. I believe I voice the feeling of most of those who attended, that the prohibition movement had received no setback by that silence. Two days before the legal time for adournment, the governor sent a special nessage urging that a local option and egulation measure be passed. The senate, weak as it has been on this question, ignored the governor's bill and passed that of the committee, a much stronger measure, by unanimous vote. They had stripped it, however, of the reference of prohibition to the vote of the people, and ha' added Senator Kuchier's amendment excepting Salt Lake City and Orden from the county

"The senate committee bill was conceived and brought forth as a substitute for a prohibition measure. Even when weakened by senate amendments it contained strict regulation provisions. Before the house took it up for action, the governor made the astounding request that a conference committee be appointed an unprecedented procedure—to draft unprecedented procedure-to draft new measure.

"The committee met with the governor and he gave to them at once a measure which he was willing to sign. There were earnest men on that committee who had voted for prohibition and wanted some-thing stronger than the senate commit-tee bill, but they were compelled to ac-cept something weaker instead by the governor's positive statement on the points at issue that they must be so or he would veto it. Salt Lake City and Ogden were therefore made units. The license was made less, the hour of closing was made later than in the senate committee bill, which had received an unanimous vote in the senate.

"One of the senators who helped draw that bill stated to four members of this house last Sunday that the governor had declared to him and another senator that he would sign the original committee bill, thus inducing them to kill the prohibition measure, which, of course, he would not sign.

"One new provision was made a part of the conference committee bill which I believe deserves comment. It is that which takes the licensing power out of the hands of local authorities and places it in the hands of the state's executive. Not only this, but a new set of officers under the direct control of the same authority is created to carry out the law. The three members of the board of examiners cannot in the very nature of things decide when and to whom licenses should be granted so well as an equally honest board of county commissioners or an equally honest mayor and city council. Special state officers cannot be in all parts of the state watching whether saloons are closing on time or whether speak-easy kitchens are being maintained, and local officers will feel that they could not be trusted, the matter had been taken out of their hands, and, I fear, will resent this extraordinary measure.

I becought Senator Badger to agree to an earlier vote, but he declared that he would consent to no prohibition measure going into effect earlier than Jan. I. 1911. On the roll call it failed of passage by a vote of 9 to 5. Later it was called up for reconsideration by Senator Badger. By a sechnicality Senator Kuchler defeated its reconsideration. A senate rule not always followed was invoked by the senator. I sider shall receive a majority report of the senators elected the motion will fall. APPOINTMENTS TO BE ANNOUNCED TO SENATE

The senate yesterday passed two juvenile court measures and killed one. The one killed was easily the most important of the three. It provided for detention homes for juvenile delinquents in the different counties of the state. The bill made the establishment of such homes compulsory in counties containing cities of the first and second class, and optional with the juvenile court commissioner, members of the board of health, the board of sheep commissioners, and the members of several other boards, most of whom serve without compensations. the board of sheep commissioners, and the members of several other boards, most of whom serve without compensa-tion.
